

LearnKey Announces '21st Century Inmate Re-Entry Program'

ST. GEORGE, Utah, July 9, 2009 – LearnKey, Inc. announces a new program directed to prisoner re-entry. The program, "21st Century Inmate Re-Entry Program," provides on-demand access to award winning Post Secondary Occupational Certification Programs.

"Our mission is to provide inmates training for certifications, matching marketable job skills identified by the U.S. Bureau of Labor. This can play a big part in their re-entry to society," said company founder and CEO, John Clemons. "LearnKey takes the classroom experience to the individual learner - wherever it is needed. Helping people gain knowledge and improve their personal situation through effective training. These courses use state-of-the-art technology, are extremely engaging and interactive, and pave the road to certifications," said Clemons.

Marketable job skills identified by the U.S. Bureau of Labor matched by LearnKey's Certification Training Programs:

- * Administrative Assistant
- * Administrative Clerk
- * Customer Service
- * Call Center
- * Help Desk
- * Technical Support
- * Automotive Service Technicians and Mechanics
- * Web Designer
- * Graphic Designer

"Bob Ducey will head up the '21st Century Inmate Re-Entry Program' as Business Development Manager," said Jamie Franzman, Chief Operating Officer of LearnKey. "We are pleased to have Bob join our professional staff and he will be responsible for state correctional institutions, county jails, federal correctional institutions, privately managed correctional institutions, and half-way houses. LearnKey has helped correctional institutions of all sizes accomplish their prisoner re-entry related goals. Some of LearnKey's many customers include: Department of Correctional Education, Richmond, VA; Coleman Federal Correctional, Coleman, FL; Idaho Department of Corrections, Boise, ID; Federal Correctional Institution, Talladega, AL; and many more.

In addition, government agencies, including the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), have called upon LearnKey to help them achieve their essential training and productivity goals. LearnKey also takes great pride in providing learning solutions for schools and districts nationwide, including New York City Public School System, Albuquerque Public Schools and Texas Education Service Centers.
